What good are trade agreements for the U.S.? A perspective from Scott Goddin, Director of the U.S. Commercial Service Office, U.S. Dept. of Commerce, in Portland who works to promote exports in Oregon every day. Are the trade agreements just for the "Big Guys" and do they really mean degradation to the environment and labor conditions as alleged by opposition groups? How should we, in the trade respond? This will be a very interesting and timely discussion that you won't want to miss. See you there!
